The image displays five screenshots of an iPhone's Contacts application interface, illustrating the flow from viewing contact details to editing them.

Screenshot 1: Contact Details (Initial View)
Shows the contact card for "Dan Hartshorn" with the title "Sr Mobile Designer | Constant Contact". It includes sections for Email address, Phone numbers, Addresses, and Notes (custom field). Buttons for "DETAILS" and "EMAIL LISTS" are at the top.

Screenshot 2: Contact Details (Email List Selection)
Shows the same contact card, but the "EMAIL LISTS" button is highlighted. A modal overlay shows the email address "dhartshorn@constantcontact.com" and two tabs: "DETAILS" and "EMAIL LISTS".

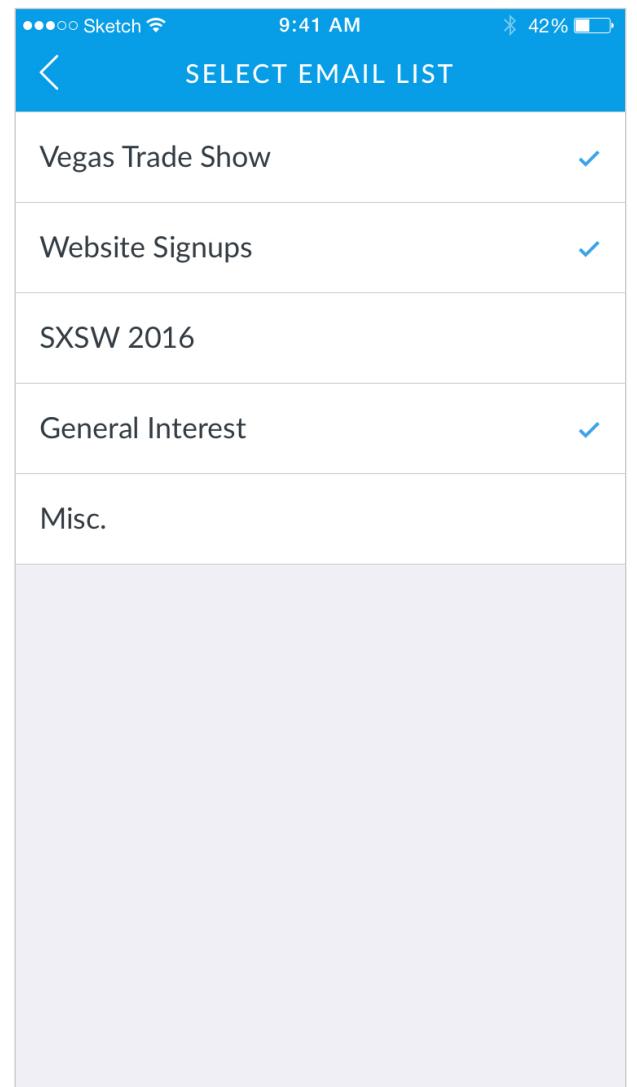

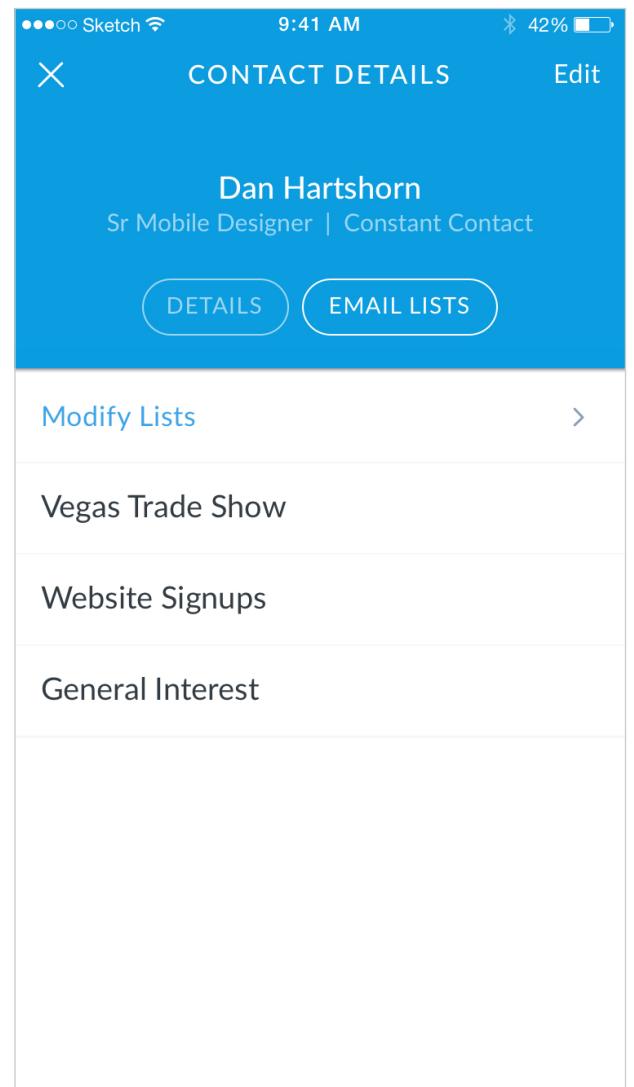

Screenshot 3: Edit Contact (Initial View)
Shows the "EDIT CONTACT" screen with the contact's email address "dhartshorn@constantcontact.com" and selected email lists "General Interest, SXSW 2016, ...". It includes sections for Contact details (First name: Dan, Last name: Hartshorn), More contact details (Job title: Sr. Mobile Designer, Company: Constant Contact), and a notes section ("Met at SXSW - Stubb's BBQ").

Screenshot 4: Edit Contact (Editing Fields)
Shows the "EDIT CONTACT" screen with the contact's updated information: First name "Dan", Last name "Hartshorn", Job title "Sr. Mobile Designer", Company "Constant Contact", Home phone "512.555.4578", and Street Address 1 "1105 Altum Street". A keyboard is visible at the bottom.

Screenshot 5: Add Custom Field (Modal Overlay)
A modal overlay titled "Add custom field" is shown, prompting the user to "Enter a label for this field". It includes a text input field, a "Cancel" button, and an "Add" button. The background shows the "EDIT CONTACT" screen.
